

TROOPS SOON TO BE THERE

FORTY THOUSAND MEN ARE NOW ON THEIR WAY FROM SPAIN.

Military Operations Will Have to be Suspended Until November as the Rainy Season is Coming on in Cuba—Many Lives May be Lost by Disease.
Washington, Sept. 26.

Washington, July 22.—A letter written by an Englishman residing in Santiago de Cuba, under a recent date to a friend in this city, contained considerable information regarding the revolution in Cuba. The writer, among other things, said:

"With the troops now arriving from Spain there will be more than 40,000 men here in a few days. As the rainy season is coming on military operations on a large scale will have to be suspended until November, when the government expects to send out about 40,000 additional troops. In the meantime yellow fever, malaria and wounds will have carried off several thousand, and rendered useless many more. The insurgents are very numerous and, of course have the sympathy of the country people, but they are short of arms.

The authorities are very happy over the report that the United States army and ammunition so that if the government is able to prevent the landing of supplies will die a natural death.

taking strong precautions to prevent any filibustering expeditions from leaving that country.

JAEHNE'S INDICTMENT.

A Peremptory Refusal by Recorder Goff to Dismiss It.
New York, July 22.—Recorder Goff refused to whom Assistant District Attorney

Lewis' motion for the dismissal of the indictment for aiding and abetting false impersonation against Charles H. Jaehne, the professional bondsman and brother of the "boodle" alderman, was referred, to-day temporarily refused to quash Jaehne's indictment. The record said:

"I do not feel warranted in granting such a motion. The defendant, Jaehne, was indicted by the grand jury as the principal in the crime for which his co-defendant, Allen, was tried before me.

and convicted. Allen's conviction was a perfectly proper one, as it was a very clear case. During the trial he testified that he was induced to represent himself as Allen by a man whose name he did not know, but whose personal appearance, according to his description, corresponded closely to that of Jaehne. There was no other man who could be so interested in the escape.

of these prisoners as Jaehne, who had signed financial bonds for their bail. When the grand jury found the indictments there must have been sufficient evidence before them to warrant their opinion as expressed by their bills, that Jahne was the principal while Dolan and Allen were merely the tools.

can, of course, not think of granting a motion for the dismissal of Jaehne's indictment. Should this motion be granted there would thus be established a precedent for such an anomaly.

law which would permit the trial and conviction of the tool while it allowed the free dismissal of all charges against the suspected principal."

after this denial of his motion, refused to say what would be the next step on the part of the district attorney in Jaehne's case.

Cannot Meet Harter.
Boston, July 22.—A Journal special from Northampton says ex-Congressman Horr has telegraphed from Chicago.

go that he will possibly not be able to participate in the debate with Harter which is scheduled for Friday, the closing day of the big Chautauqua assembly at Laurel park. He thinks the money debate with Harvey, now in progress, may run beyond Wednesday evening, and that if it does he could no longer desert the debate and the interests of his party.

Associates of the Late F. W. Russell.
Among the associates in the state senate of the late Frederick W. Russell sell, one of Hartford's most esteemed citizens, who died Sunday afternoon were the late Judge E. I. Sanford of this city and the Hon. Lynde Harrison who was then only twenty-seven years of age, and the youngest member of the senate; the Hon. John T. Walton of Norwich and the Hon. Robbins Battell of Norfolk. The latter died a few months ago. John M. Douglas of Mil-ditown, who was then only twenty-six years of age, was a member of the house from Middletown. The late Judge V. B. Chamberlain, then thirty-two, was in the house from New Br Waterbury's Drinking Water.

Yesterday's Waterbury American says: It's a terrible thing for a city of the size of Waterbury to have its supply of drinking water contaminated at this season, and there will be genera rejoicing throughout the municipality to learn to-day that the horrid stream from the Branch was shut off this morning. It will take a day to get the dirty water out of the pipes, but to-morrow

Waterbury will have the clear water from the eastern source almost exclusively. People on the hillsides, however, will be confronted, as in recent summers, with a shortage through the day and it will not be long before the Mac river pumps will have to be started. But Waterbury will take kindly to Mac river water, after undergoing what it has for the past week.

Critically Ill.
The many friends of Mrs. Walter Leigh will regret to learn of her critical illness which began trouble at her home illness with heart trouble at her home in Westville. There are but slight hopes of her recovery.